of "Three Improvisations for Sax Quartet" and a piece called "Deer Head Sketches" in which Woods outlines all the different rooms of the famous jazz club with musical movements.

Phil Woods was known for constantly revising his work. In addition to writing for jazz quartet, little big band and full big band, he also wrote more through composed, classical-type pieces. The recording combines all of those parameters into one by featuring the latest revisions of some of Phil's well known sax quartet music. The members of the quartet had a relationship with Phil, rehearsing all of this music with him before his passing in 2015.
